

Constructivism

PLSC 43701

Winter 2019

Time: Wednesday, 3:00 pm – 5:50 pm

Room: Wieboldt Hall (WB) 130

Professor: Rochelle Terman, Department of Political Science, rterman@uchicago.edu

Office hours: Wednesdays 10am-12pm, Pick Hall 411.

Course Description

This seminar traces the development of the constructivist program in international relations. The main goal is to better understand constructivism's elements, assumptions, and methods, and apply those to current issues. We start by uncovering the roots of constructivism in sociology and philosophy and examine structuration theory, sociological institutionalism, and social theory. The second part of this course focuses on the constructivist agenda in international relations, its boundaries and its critics. In the last part of the course, we examine current research in international relations that draws on constructivist methods, including work on narrative and legitimation, resistance to norms, status hierarchies, and the “practice turn” in international theory.

Prerequisites

This class is intended for Ph.D. and Masters students. No background in sociology is required, though prior exposure to graduate-level IR courses is strongly recommended.

Communications

We will be using Canvas to make announcements, distribute readings, and collect assignments.

Feel free to email me with me questions or concerns that are not answered in this syllabus. You may refer to me as “Rochelle” (or “Dr. Terman” if you prefer) – but please avoid “Ms./Mrs./Miss Terman.” Note that I avoid email on the evening and weekends.

If you have a preferred name or pronoun you think I should know about, please let me know.

Readings

We will read heavily from the following books. I suggest you buy them:

1. Katzenstein, Peter, ed. The Culture of National Security: Norms and Identity in World Politics. Columbia University Press, 1996.
2. Searle, John R. The Construction of Social Reality. Simon and Schuster, 1995.
3. Wendt, Alexander. Social Theory of International Politics. Cambridge University Press, 1999.

All other readings are available through Canvas, unless otherwise noted.

Requirements and Evaluation

Students will be evaluated across four areas. Unless otherwise noted, written assignments should be submitted through Canvas by 11:59pm on the assigned due date. Please format your assignments using double-spaced, Times New Roman 12 point font, 1-inch margins.

1. Seminar participation (35%). Students are expected to attend every session, having completed a careful reading of the assigned texts. Each student will also lead discussion of specific reading(s) of your choosing. Discussion leaders kick off discussion of specific readings with an oral summary, commentary, and questions (maximum 10 minutes). Use the questions below (under “Discussion” section) as a guide. Sign up for discussion leaders will take place during week 1.
2. Review essay (15%). Each student will write a book review of a recent volume (last 10 years) employing constructivist methods in IR. We’ll crowd-source a list of appropriate books here. The review should summarize the volume and offer a critique of its contribution. Examples of book reviews can be found Perspectives on Politics and students are encouraged to follow PoP’s guidelines on book reviews. Reviews should be 4-5 pages, due February 13.
3. Paper proposal (10%): A 3-page proposal for your final paper. You may write on any topic you wish that is in any way related to this course. This proposal should include a title, a summary of the puzzle you intend to address, your evaluation of the state of the art on your topic, a suggestion as to how you intend to address the puzzle, and a paragraph offering a rough outline of the paper’s potential design. Proposals due January 30.
4. Paper (40%): A completely finished paper, approximately 25-30 pages. Due March 18.

Late Policy and Incompletes

All deadlines are strict. Late assignments will be dropped a full letter grade for each 24 hours past the deadline. Exceptions will be made for students with a documented emergency or illness.

I will only consider granting incompletes to students under extreme personal/family duress.

Discussion

Class discussion will be conducted as an open forum, not a lecture, with students providing the majority of the input. For each reading, we will summarize the argument, discuss its contribution to IR, and probe the argument and evidence for strengths and weaknesses. The following questions can be used to guide your reading of each piece and will shape our discussion:

- What is the question or puzzle?
- What is the argument?
- What are the explicit or implicit assumptions?
- Who are the relevant actors?
- What are their preferences and interests and where do they come from?
- At what level of analysis is the argument?
- Where does the argument fit into the theoretical landscape of IR and who would disagree?
- What is the relative importance of agency versus structure?
- What evidence is provided in support of the argument and is it convincing?

Professionalism and Accessibility

This class is committed to creating an inclusive environment in which everyone can participate regardless of background. Everyone is expected to follow basic norms of professional intellectual exchange. Please be respectful in all your communications, including class discussions. Misconduct based on race, gender, religion or sexual orientation are not acceptable.

If you have a particular concern surrounding inclusiveness or accessibility, please see me as soon as possible so that we can make proper arrangements.

Academic Integrity

I follow a zero-tolerance policy on all forms of academic dishonesty. All students are responsible for familiarizing themselves with, and following, university policies regarding proper student conduct. Being found guilty of academic dishonesty is a serious offense and may result in a failing grade for the assignment in question, and possibly for the entire course.
